Annuals are dumb anyway. All you ever see is smiling pictures of fake people with masks.
Big smiles—the yearbook is the only place you can ever find them. Maybe some people never get tired of seeing candid shots of popular people that look posed. It seems the average person is only photographed in group pictures. No one ever sees the little people of the student body, but this is only one man's opinion, maybe I'm the only one.....

Each man, spinning, whirling in empty space;
all turning separately without knowing that one man is trying to communicate.
Each man is thinking his own thoughts for himself.
The different man wants to share with others with separate worlds of no communication.
If only one of these revolving, twirling, worlds of thoughts
would help him.
If only enough people somewhere would help by getting their thoughts together to make a way.

Mrs. Jones,
I have enjoyed my time in the Office more than any other class. I've learned more from you than you'll ever know. You have become one of the most important people in my life. You have taught me a lot about working in an office situation and also how to work with people and a lot about myself. You and Mr. Slayton have been the two most influencial teachers in my high school career. Thanks so much for all that you've taught me, for your friendship, confidence in me, and for the support

Dear Mrs. Jones,
I sure have enjoyed knowing and working with you. The school here would really have something missing if you weren't a part of it.
Take care & God be with you.

Me. These are the things that make you as special to me as you are. I'll come back and see you after graduation. Good luck in all your do.

A new friend.
Each of you stiff and unbending,
Each a little uncomfortable and awkward with the other,
Neither willing to give way.
Just as you despair that things
Are never going to be right
You begin to become used to each other's presence.
Your friend adapts to you,
And you to him.
Now there is a stage where everything is soft and pliable, Comf ortable and easy.
All the work and discomfort has paid off.
At last you have a friend
You can take to school Share everything with

Even take on dates.
But this is a brief stage...
Without warning
your old levis,
a fringed benefit,
begin to give way—
only in the end though.
You try to patch up your relationship, but eventually are forced to accept that you cannot put up with such an embarrassing and revealing companion.
It's not until now that you can look back on that friendship and appreciate it.
But it's over,
and its time to start a new one.

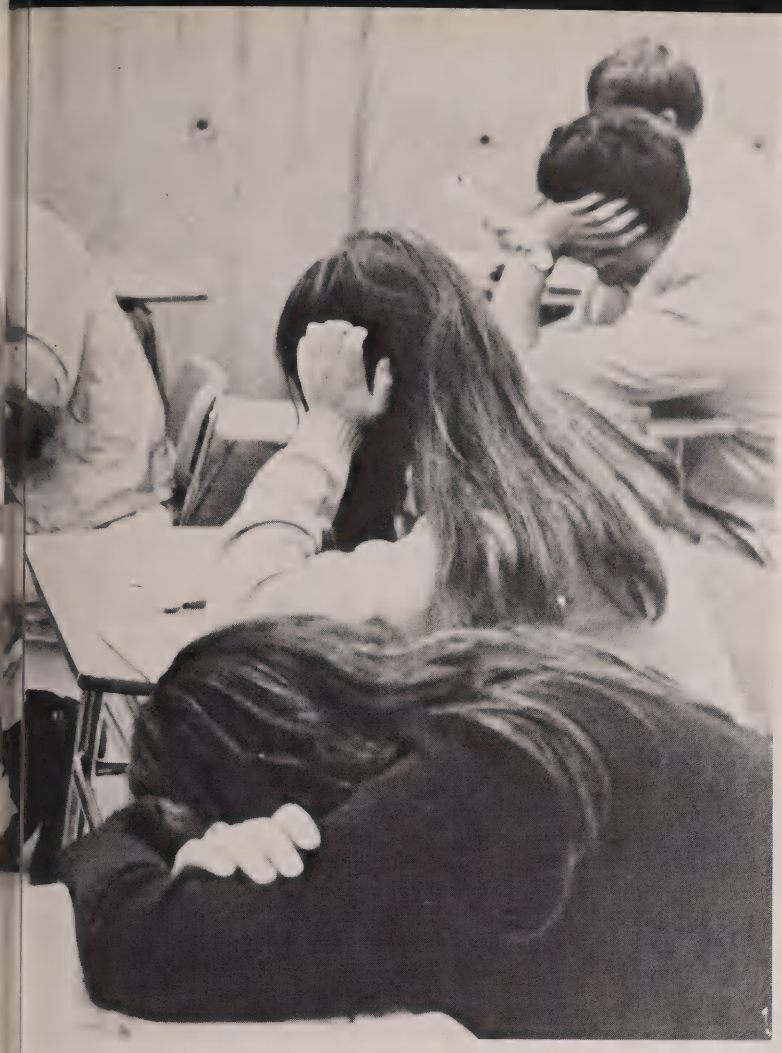
"My heart cries out: 'Stop this apathy'



The world spins,
People jostle,
Cars hoot impatiently
And yet I remain still,
Unaware of the motions of those around me;
For I live in a world,
Where there is no pollution,
No war, no hate,
Just love.
Love, the source of everything I possess.
I see the world as it rarely is seen—
The bird with young ones in the nest,
The river rushing gaily past
So happy, carefree, uninhibited.
I want to set my soul free,
let it float.
Act as it wants to act
Say what it wants to say,
But my thoughts and ideas are supressed,
By a world,
By people,
Who don't care
About anything other than themselves.
My heart cries out: "Stop this apathy."
But no-one hears—
They are too busy rushing past.

There is something about the snow that brings out the kid in everyone. Who can resist the temptation to throw a few snowballs or rub a few faces in it? The big snow of '72 as it will be called started on Tuesday, December 5. By night everyone knew that there would be no school the next few days. The snow stayed and the temperatures dropped into the minus teen degree range and held for the rest of the week. The icy grip did many dollars damage to shrubs and trees in the area. Coldest temp. of the week was down to minus 15.

The rain.
Will it ever stop?
Will the clouds ever go away and let the sun shine through?
Will God ever stop crying, and smile upon the earth?

The snow was good for making sculptures as we see here. Don Chase, Melodie Hickman, Russ Ragland, Mike Huber, Julie Farstad and Bob Glen built the statue of Piggie Wiggie and his friend Chicken Little. The lower shot shows the gingerbread house the boys home ec. class built to accompany their Christmas cookie party.

"move over sun"

Sometimes it is hard to go to class on those first sunshinny days of spring.
You walk by your best friend who is basking in the sun getting rid of that winter palor and you try to remember how many absences ago you were warned about missing again.
Which is it to be?
Class or Sun.
Move over sun.

Mrs. Jones,
You're a really

and my silliness O.K.

"out where it is all real"

It's spring like days
When the sun is shinning
And the world is beginning to come alive
That I wonder what I am doing here.
Why am I not out there
Where it is all real?
But then it is only A few more weeks until Graduation and the end of the shielding
Womb of public schools.
What then?
Will I stand inside
A mill looking out
At the sun—wondering
What I am doing there?
Wishing I were at school
Where it is all real.

"It's hard to concentrate when spring gets in the way"

The neat thing about the patio
Is you aren't seen goofing off
By the general public as they Go by on 7th Street every day.
Your teachers are sometimes Soft and let your entire Class go out on a sunny day.
We promise to not be distracted
By the rest of the traffic
But it is hard to concentrate On a book when spring is
In the air and the sun
Gets in way.

"good excuse"

Top photo, Cindy Milner, Gene Perry and Julie Chauran. Lower photo, Gene Perry.

Having a cast
On your foot
Comes in handy
When you need An excuse to Be lazy
On a Sunny day.
Or if you want some Chick to stop
And sign
Her name
Or draw
A funny face
On your big Toe.

Anything really valued, really loved or treasured cannot be touched. It remains as a pearl in the very core of your heart, occasionally shining forth like a beacon, illuminating the eyes of those near you. But sometimes the pearl is clouded over as troubles and fears overcome lightheartedness. Wipe the slate clean. Be happy and free. Live each day as if there was no other and spread peace for the good of man.

Teachers try many things to be "one of the guys." They welcome students with open arms at the registration, go through initiations, compete for athletes, and occassionally strike back if you demand they do something perfectly reasonable like climb a ladder with an egg in their mouth.

On the next page we see new teachers Semon (upper left), Cardwell (upper center), Sullivan (lower left), and Hall (lower right), as they are initiated by the rally. Upper right, Mr. Deborde introduces the cross country team and below, Mr. Slayter prepares to direct one of the bands.

Is the way to a faculty member through his stomach?

The students in the Commercial Food Service Class, taught by Mrs. Huber and Mrs. Hatch must have thought so when they served lunch to the faculty.

The hostess was Kathy Mishler. She greeted the guests and showed them to their seats. The waitresses brought the guests their menus, served water or coffee, took the orders, and served the lunch. The menus were designed by Julie Ham. The cover portrayed a witch, a haunted house and a pumpkin—all representative of the Halloween Spirit. The menu was the regular menu of the day, the main dishes featured roll-ups or meat loaf. The charge was $.55, the usual adult price.

The class also served lunch to the visiting Oregon State University Career Education Advisors. Later in the year the class served lunch as a regular feature.

Ken Brougher was manager of the day, having the responsibility of watching over both restaurant and the kitchen. He introduced himself to each guest and saw that everyone got fast, effecient service.

The faculty generally agreed that it was nice to be served lunch without having to stand in the long line.

Shown on these two pages, top left, Ken Brougher and Mrs. Huber check the service with Principal O'Neal and Mrs. Hodgson. Lower left, hostess Kathy Mishler waits to greet another customer. Lower center, counselors Semon and Pfeifle visit with viee principal Lee Wacher as Carol Wilson waits the table. For sheer excitement nothing beats the sports program with its myriad competitive events. Fellowship abounds before, during and after the games or meets.

A lot of gut work after school while everyone else is home watching television. Practicing in the rain with mud squishing into and under your practice sweats. Doing the same routine time after time, day after day. Finally doing your thing while your folks and your friends watch from the warm shelter of the stands. Doing your best and hoping it will be appreciated by coach, friend and parents. Finally the season is over and you are standing at the front of the room with all eyes on you and your name is called and your letter is your final reward.

". . . your letter is your reward."

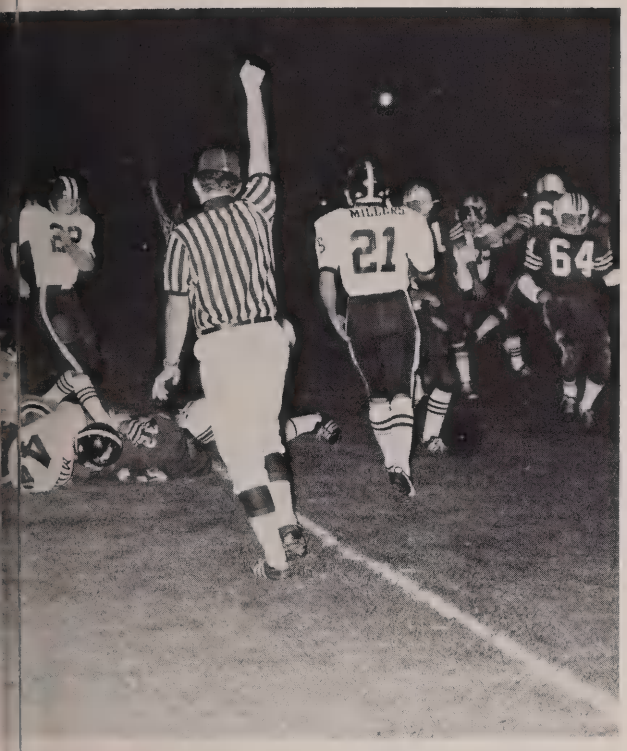
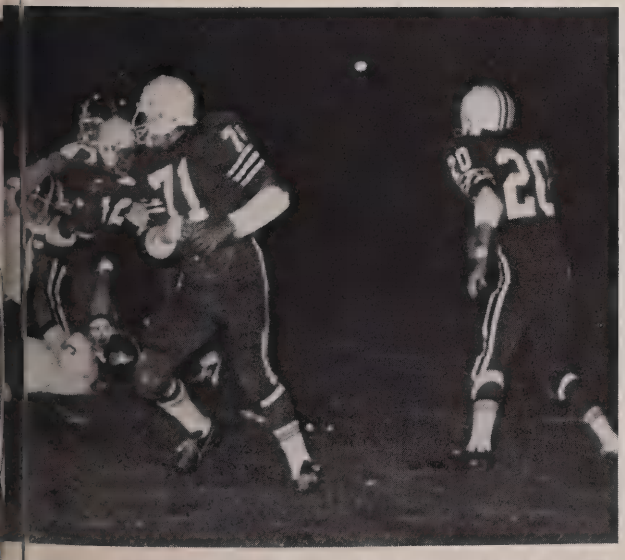
VARSI





Y FOOTBALL

The Springfield football team had a disappointing season on the scoreboard this year, but not necessarily in all aspects of the game.

You can hardly expect a coach to come to a school and have a championship team the first few years he is here. There have been many improvements made this year which are pleasing to the trained football eye.

We all want to have a winning season, but be patient. It takes a few years for a school to adjust to a new head coach. You must look at the Springfield football team as you would an expansion team in the professional league. Look at it this way for the simple reason that it takes a few years to become a contender.

There is a good nucleus of juniors and sophomores, so give them a chance. You just might have a state title in a few years.

The JV football team enjoyed a very good season. The Millers, under coach Dove, had a number of sophomores participating and the varsity football team has a lot to look forward to in '73 when these talented underclassmen take over.

These girls had personality, looks, and a variety of interests, but they all wanted the school to have spirit. It hurt them when they were the only people cheering at certain times during a game. The fans are pretty good at SHS so the cheerleaders didn't have that rough a time. The girls are accompanied by a couple or three boys during the fall and winter. New advisor was Carol Ranstad.

Today I found a coca-cola can a half-eaten apple
a tumble weed
a squished up caterpiller, and you.
Considering all the things
I found today, and judging from the laughter and tears and times I've had with you I think finding you was even better than the squished up caterpiller.

It is hard to be controversial when

We didn't do much of anything at all, come to think about it.

You can't help smiling as you look back over the past three years. It doesn't seem like it was that long and tough anymore. You can remember that big lout of a senior (when you were a sophomore) trying to toss you over the balcony, and how you hung on for dear life as you swayed near the edge.

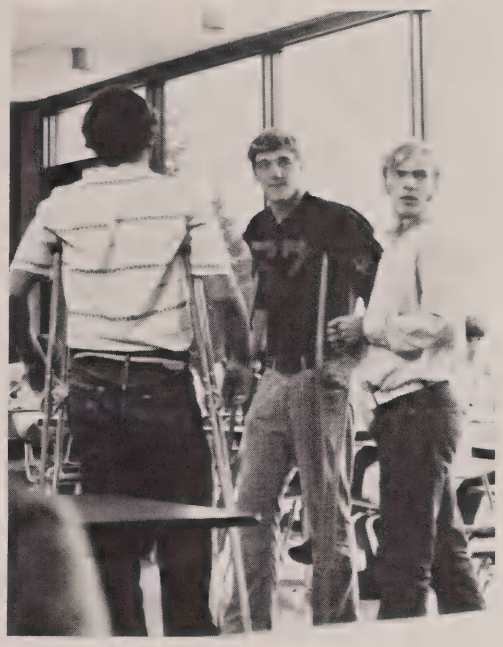
"There you are, standing with a diploma in your hand."



You see yourself in your senior year dashing about, madly lighting up all the trash cans in the English department and watching some senior tear the sweatshirt off some sophomore. In the second week of your senior year there you are, Charles Atlas, holding a sophomore over the balcony, listening to him scream. Then there you are, standing with a diploma in your hand and nothing matters anymore. For once in your life you know where you stand —ahead.

The alarm bursts forth through your haze of sleep, issuing a fine resounding ring.
A ring not too welcome, when every instinct is set upon sleep.
What an abrupt, initiation into a new day.
Darkness enfolds the earth and only bits of light can be seen on the horizon.
Fog drifts in clouds and sifts about dampening the air.
Dew is on the ground frozen to frost.
All is quiet, not a bird sings-but the alarm continues to ring...
Morning-meeting day-is a grueling time.
It's the separation between one day and the next--an hour not to be missed if you are to meet the day.

He smiled! Only a stranger passing by, but he cared enough to look at your troubled face and nod encouragement.
.....Today you settled grievences with your number one enemy—one small step for mankind, a giant step for you.
....That tingly feeling from a sincere compliment given by someone you admire, giving you new confidence in yourself.
....You met a new person and she solved your earth shattering problem. You've gained a friend.

....The memory of friends, the people who see your faults and failings, but accept and love you anyway, carry your live, your memories within your heart and you'll never walk alone.

DEDICATION

"Exciting 40 years"

An interesting, impressive teacher, that's Mrs. Young. This marked the ending of her forty year teaching career.

It all began in the fall of 1929, a year of bank closures, bankruptcy, no money, no one getting paid. It was "The Big Year." Mrs. Young's first teaching job was in Nyssa, Oregon, where she was surrounded by alkali dust four inches deep, sage brush, and jack rabbits, but "very nice people." About 100 students attended this small, friendly school.

Mrs. Young became ill and had to refrain from teaching for two years. When she got well, she took off an additional year and married John Young. After the wedding, she lived in Nyssa once again. She returned to teaching as she couldn't bring herself to stay home playing bridge twice a day like most housewives at that time.

The next thing that stands out in Mrs. Young's mind was the tragedies of World War II. Part of the students were taken in to serve and some Japanese were shipped in from the coast to an old concentration camp, all these small Japanese boys and girls were rather lost in their language and communication with English speaking strangers.

Her brother, who was a pilot of a B17 was shot down over Berlin and was considered missing in action. Together the Youngs decided they should be near her parents in Portland.

In 1944, Springfield High School needed a coach, so they came to this school and liked it very much. Her husband, John, was also a principal for a while.

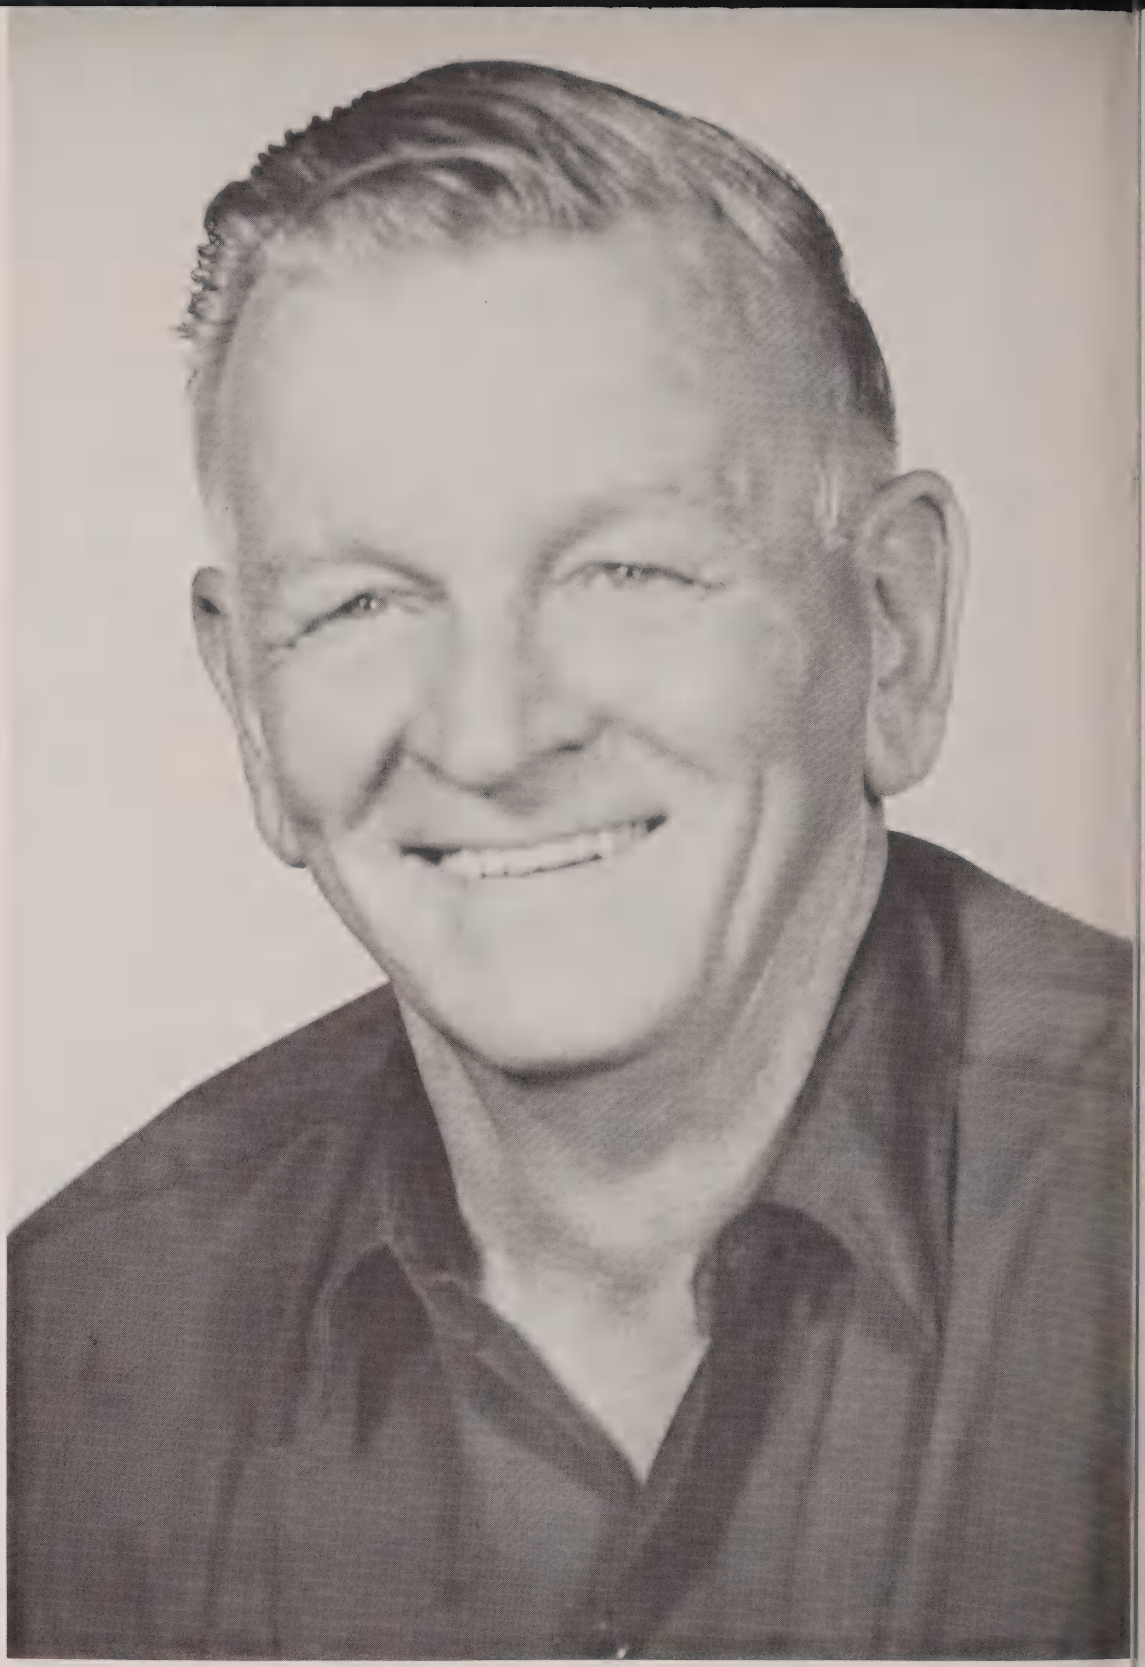
The various subjects Mrs. Young has taught are English (of course), Journalism, Vocal Music, Dramatics, and believe it or not, Girl Scouts. Many people have their favorites and specialties and English is most dominantly Mrs. Young's favorite. She says, "I'm still learning more of English and other things. It is so broad. When you've taken both literature and writing; I don't think there's any end to writing...I just have more fun!"

Mrs. Young has always tried to treat students as she would like to be treated. "I like to inspire all my students to keep learning. I realize I'm not a genius, nor the greatest teacher in the world, but I'm still learning everyday."

At present, Mrs. Young hasn't any plans for after retirement, however, she does plan on sleeping in in the mornings.

It has been an exciting forty years of teaching spread over forty three years time.

"Kelly . . . a fine fellow"



In the teacher's lunch room on a February Friday after school, the staff gathered for a short faculty meeting. It was a special meeting, indeed. While everyone was gathering together, finding a place to sit, many were helping themselves to a piece of cake and a cup of coffee. It sounded more like a social get-together than a faculty meeting. Actually it was a surprise reception for the retirement of one of our custodians, Kelly Jackson.

A big smile was on kelly's face when he came in—laughing and talking with everyone. One teacher said to Kelly, "Maybe you'll have time to come back and see us." Another commented "We are really going to miss you around here."

The atmosphere was gay and moving along fine. At the right time a gift was presented to Kelly and his wife with these words from Mr. O'Neal. "I'm sure we all know Kelly is a fine fellow and his wife a very nice lady. Kelly and his wife have been sweet to all of us. In appreciation for his work," he added with a laugh, "we have collected all the scrap paper around the school and we are going to give him this present from all of us."

The present was a beautiful wall clock, however. He also received a pair of red socks with white hearts.

Kelly has been custodian for Springfield High School for 4½ years. Before he came to Springfield he was employed in the San Francisco area.

"Little things make it worth while"

During her fourteen years of working at Springfield High School, Mrs. Hodgson has suffered no hardship or warfare getting along with everyone in the attendance office and throughout the entire school.

Before working at SHS she was an everyday, normal American housewife. Later, she acquired a job in the kitchen at Brattain Elementary and then as a cook at Springfield Junior High. In Oct. 1959, Mrs. Hodgson worked with Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Eich (formerly employed at Thurston High School) in the administration office at Springfield High School. Then in 1960, she moved to the office of attendance. To be able to work in the office she took commercial classes to brush up on the basics and proceedures of the job.

"The little things in life usually dominate the big things." commented Mrs. Hodgson, when telling about the brighter points in her job. Her whole association with the kids, she felt, was pretty good. Its the little things day in and day out that make it all worth while. "There are nice people all around this school. When people work, they don't have time to be good neighbors." she stated. "And that's the policy I usually try to follow."

After retiring, she plans on taking up sewing and maybe some art work. She is looking forward to a calm, boring life in which she can stay up late, watch t.v. and sleep in.

Mrs. Hodgson is really going to miss everyone, but above all, in the least, will she miss making out withdrawals.

Georgia-Pacific helps keep America's symbol of freedom flying high.

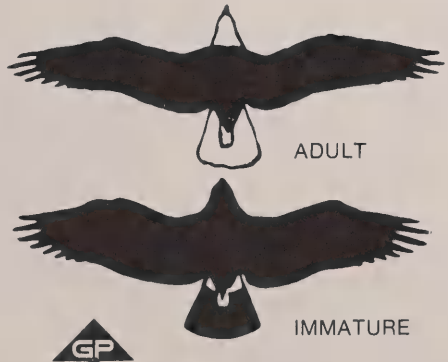
You, too, can protect eagles.

The magnificent American Bald Eagles are in danger. Eagle populations are declining. It is a Federal crime to shoot or molest eagles, yet people continue to shoot them.

Found only on the North American continent, bald eagles have a wing span of 6½ to 8 feet. They don't get snowy white heads and tails until the fourth year, so they look like hawks, which also are protected in most states.

G-P Foresters protect eagles

Georgia-Pacific manages a successful eagle protection program on our millions of acres of timberlands from Maine to Oregon, from Florida to Washington, from Arkansas to Alaska. Our foresters protect eagle nest trees. We keep roads and people from the nest wherever possible. Our logging crews do not harvest eagle nest trees. And to stop illegal shooting, we offer free posters to help people identify eagles.



Send for your free eagle posters

You can help by teaching others to appreciate, identify and protect eagles. Free posters are available in two sizes, 8 x 10" and 10 x 17" for landowners, tree farmers, ranchers, conservationists, bird watchers, school teachers and students.
